

Editor's Choice Awards: Best Credit Cards of 2009, Part 2

January 12, 2010

By: Curtis Arnold

As our “year-end” highlights list moves into the new year, we spotlight credit cards that caught our attention in 2009 that also look to make a major impact in your spending habits during 2010.

Most Innovative New Program: Chase Blueprint

Chase Blueprint cardholders can select some items, such as reimbursed work expenses, as charge items to be paid off quickly. Other charges can be allocated to short and long-term status, with varying interest rates and minimum payments. The service even offers a “Finish It” option that reminds our editorial team of playing Mortal Kombat. Just tell Chase the date when you want to finish paying off your balance, and their system will put you on a special payment plan to help you reach your goal.
